Steelworkers: Prepare for strike

By Mike Myers
Staff writer

GRANITE CITY — Steelworkers at Granite City Steel are facing a strike at midnight July 31 when the current contract expires.

Members of the United Steel Workers voted down a contract proposal with National Steel yesterday, 2,237 to 2,004, according to Buddy Davis, District 34 director, United Steelworkers Union. Those were the votes cast out of a total 7,300 who were eligible.

Davis said the workers at Granite City and Great Lakes (near Chicago) divisions overwhelmingly voted to turn down the proposal while workers at the Midwest (near Detroit) division voted overwhelmingly to approve it.

"Now it's just a matter of starting to prepare," he said for a strike. Davis said, "I am sending out a letter today (Tuesday)."

Davis said there will probably be another negotiating meeting in July. "We don't expect either the company or the members to take positions significantly so, that being the case, everybody needs to be getting prepared for a strike."

Richard P. Coffee, National's vice president of human resources and claims administrator, said, "If all our members at our divisions voted against the agreement because they believe National can afford to give more, they're wrong."

Beth Davis and Coffee said the proposal is virtually identical to the package approved by employees at Bethlehem Steel. Davis said he thought it was the best available plan to keep the company viable and ensure the long-term employment of the workers.

"I felt the agreement should have been approved," Davis said. "I recommended it very strongly, as did every member of my negotiating committee."

"We're extremely disappointed with the results of the voting," Coffee said. "We believe the proposed agreement represented a very attractive offer for the employees and union."

A spokesman at the Granite City subdivision office of the Steelworkers union said it had not gotten any official notice on the vote Tuesday morning.

"We're trying to piece together what we've heard on the news," she said. "Workers said they were day after they were unhappy with the company's proposal to schedule holidays like regular work days, taking away the worker's previous rights to choose whether he wanted to work on Labor Day, Christmas and Christmas Eve."

The agreement called for a $500 signing bonus and a $500 advance on 1989 wage sharing. The company said previous wage concessions by workers were paid back in this contract, but not all workers agreed. Wages were to be increased an average of $1 an hour in 1991 and 50 cents an hour in 1992.

GRANITE CITY — A stepson of a man stabbed to death early Saturday was charged with armed violence in a warrant issued Monday by the Madison County State's Attorney's office.

A grand jury will be asked to consider whether other charges should be filed against Cookson, Granite City Police Chief Don Knight said Tuesday.

NAMOEKI — The chair was empty and the ashtray was in its usual place, still unsmoked. And at least for Monday night, both would remain empty — the ashtray of its ashed and the chair of Nameoki Township Supervisor Harry Briggs Sr.

But this time next Monday night the seat will no longer be vacant.

During a special meeting, Town Clerk D. Lee Ridgeway, chosen by a follow board members to succeed Briggs, who died last Wednesday at age 68 after surgery was performed to relieve arterial blockage in his right leg.

"This was a little surprise," Ridgeway said after his appointment. Following a one-hour executive session, Trustee Joe Garcia made the motion to appoint Ridgeway. Trustee M. Dan White seconded the motion with all trustees voting unanimously in favor.

"These officers are not going to be easy to fill," Ridgeway said during a brief, but emotional acceptance speech. "I appreciate your help to the community, this board to keep things the smooth way Harry had it going and would have wanted it."

A round of applause greeted Ridgeway as board members hugged him and residents shook his hand.

Among the well-wishers was Regional Superintendent of Schools Harry A. Briggs Jr., son of the late supervisor. Briggs congratulated Ridgeway and thanked him for his kind words about his father.

Ridgeway, township clerk for eight years, said he was not expecting the appointment.

"It's going to take a lot of time and a lot of people's help to make this work," Ridgeway said. Township employees and officers were confident and

Dispute slows QuikTrip plans

QuikTrip Corp.'s move to build a store and gasoline station on the site of the former Charlie's Restaurant on Nameoki Road has been delayed after complaints by neighbors who object to the hours,大陸, trash, traffic lights, students crossing from the high school and harm to property values. The Granite City Zoning Board of Appeals decided last week to continue the case until its mid-July meeting.

Hit-and-run death results in charges

A warrant charging reckless homicide has been issued against Elisa Smith, 30, of East St. Louis in the death last week of Darren Elliott, 16, of Granite City, who was struck while crossing Illinois 3 near Niedringhaus Avenue. Smith, whose bond was set at $75,000, was arrested at Ashley's Mobile Station on Nameoki Road, after she allegedly left the scene.

Brake will give state break

An Illinois Department of Transportation program to reduce injuries and deaths in road work zones went into action Monday with increased patrols and new "Give 'em a BRAKE" warning signs on Interstate 270 near Granite City.

The Illinois State Police has assigned a hire to help ensure that troopers around the state will be present at construction and work sites.

There were 23 deaths in road work zones in Illinois last year, road work zones in Illinois last year, and nearly 2,500 injuries annually prior to 1988, according to Dale Kohl, district engineer of Highway District Eight.

Kohl said two signs will alert motorists to what approach a work zone in the eastbound lanes of I-270 east of Illinois Route 3 where repairs are being done to a bridge joint. The 4-foot-by-4

"Through this new program, troopers will spend extra hours at selected sites, sometimes moving between sites as needed," he said. "They will watch particularly for speeding and reckless driving. We assure you violators will receive citations."

"The key message we want to get across to the traveling public is to slow down and obey the posted speed limits in construction and maintenance zones," Kohl said.

Additional measures will include the use of enhanced barrier and safety devices. These are mounted on the back of highway maintenance trucks used to protect slow-moving operations, such as paint striping. If struck by a vehicle, the device is designed to absorb the impact and thus reduce deaths and injuries for both motorists and highway workers, Kohl said.

Jury rules Madison shooting accidental

EDWARDSVILLE — An attempt to protect himself cost a 22-year-old Madison man his life, a jury concluded last Wednesday, ruling the death accidental during a confrontation between Alonso H. Brimimage and an officer arrived on the scene, he was told the matter had been taken care of, the report said.

Leroy Davis of Madison, heard the shot and took Brimimage to the hospital. Davis testified that Brimimage had been mowing the lawn in the 200 block of Terre Street.

Completing his work, he was preparing to take the lawnmower home when he bent over it, and discharged a gun wrapped in a cloth that was laying atop the machine.

A report prepared by Det. Ron G. Tunc of the Madison County

Sheriff's Department said that his office had been called earlier in the day May 15 regarding threats against Brimimage. When an officer arrived on the scene, he was told the matter had been taken care of, the report said.

The report said that a witness to the confrontation said that afterward Brimimage said he was going home to get a gun to protect himself. The witness saw Brimimage return with the gun wrapped in what appeared to be a rag.

A bullet was removed from Brimimage's head, which was found against the lawnmower with the barrel end pointed up.

Tunc's report concluded that "it was an accidental shooting caused by an old gun lacking a trigger guard."

Traffic deaths jump in Madison County

By Roger Kramer
Staff writer

The number of people who died on Madison County roads in the first five months of this year has jumped by 61 percent over the same time last year, and authorities have not been able to pin down why.

Illinois Department of Transportation figures show Madison County had 29 fatal accidents during through May 31. Only Cook and DuPage counties, both in the Chicago metropolitan area, have had more fatalities.

Madison County's 29 traffic deaths compares to just 18 in the same time in 1988.

Illinois State Police Trooper James Hall said there is no clear pattern, but one factor may be the number of multi-vehicle accidents.

"We've had quite a few of them. Anything that happens, that increases your numbers pretty quickly," Hall said.

No particular highways have had more fatal accidents than normal. Hall said. The fatal accidents have been caused by carelessness, driving, weather conditions and drinking, he said.

Madison County Chief Deputy Coroner Ralph Bashlmann Jr. said last year's fatalities started out slow, but increased drastically by the end of the year.

"They could slow down later this year," he said.

Madison County finished last year with 69 traffic accidents, compared to 45 for all of 1987.

While the accident death rate has increased dramatically in Madison County, the statewide number has decreased so far this year. IDOT reported 587 statewide traffic deaths between Jan. 1 and May 31, a 4.6 percent decrease from the 615 reported during the same time in 1988.

Board nixes fencing

GRANITE CITY — School board members have decided to postpone plans to fence the campus of Granite City High School.

The board members studied bids on the fencing from three contractors and rejected them June 13. Prices for the 4-foot fencing ranged in price from $13,000 to $14,000.

The fencing was named as one of the lesser priorities in the closed session and was approved by the board April 18. The plan calls for the closing of the campus during lunch periods for a one-year trial period starting this fall.

Board members agreed that 4-foot fencing would be adequate and not detract from the look of the campus.

After reviewing the bids, board members concluded that postponing the fence might be the best option.

"I would like to see how the program went before we spend that kind of money," member Ron Koenig said. "It might be better spent another way."

Other board members felt that the fence was unnecessary.

"If the program works wouldn't that knock out the need for the fence?" L. Monroe Worthen, school treasurer asked.

In the original proposal the fence was to run from the corner of Coolidge Junior High School, through the school's main gates at both the entrance and exit, continuing in front of the gym, bypassing the main building, picking up at the pedestrian walk across the street to the Food Store. The fence would then run along the school's south property line then west to Grand Avenue Circle.

"Since this is a one-year trial project it would probably be best to wait and see how things go," Jolene Terrell, board president said.

MESD hiring practices criticized

By Scott Cousins
Staff writer

WASHINGTON PARK — A dispute has flared up over the Metro East Sanitary District's hiring practices in St. Clair County.

Canteen Township Supervisor Stephen Kokotovich said Francis Touchette, St. Clair County Board chairman and Canteen Township supervisor, is attempting to use his political influence to get favors with patronage jobs in the township.

Touchette denied the allegations.

The dispute concerns the hiring of three summer employees with the Metro East Sanitary District. Kokotovich said he had recommended the three.

In a press conference last week at the Canteen Township Supervisor's Office in Washington Park, Kokotovich, also a member of the St. Clair County Board, said employees for such jobs within the township should be filled by local taxpaying residents, and the employees should be recommended by him.

He and Fairmount City Mayor Charles Suarez also said Touchette was undermining promises made by backers of the MESD's special election in February, when supporters approved a tax increase for the sanitary district.

"We told our people that the money would be spent effectively," Suarez said. "We told them it wouldn't be used for needless political jobs."

Greathouse denied that Touchette had any influence over hiring within the district.

He said Kokotovich was "misinformed" about what will happen with funds generated from the tax increase.

"They want to spend the money now to get jobs," Greathouse said.

Kokotovich also said he believed Touchette was trying to discredit him, although he would not say why.

He said Touchette had kept other job-seekers recommended by Kokotovich from being employed within the township.

Kokotovich said the dispute began about two weeks ago when he asked触ette, "Should I know more than (MESD officials) just like I know other officials," he said. "My position doesn't call for that."

Kokotovich said the dispute was due to infighting among St. Clair County Democrats.

Touchette declined to comment about that.

"I've enjoyed working with him in the past, and I've made him vice chairman of the (county board's) road and bridges committee," Touchette said. "Since I've enjoyed working with him I'm not going to say anything else."

The senior citizen

AARP presidency added to woman's lengthy list

June Pritz, a Medicare clerk in the Accounting Department of St. Elizabeth Medical Center, has recently added another job to her busy schedule. In January she was elected to a two-year term as president of the Granite City Chapter 1340 of the American Association of Retired Persons. The chapter has 600 members.

According to Pritz, "The AARP exists to pursue the goals of individual growth and service to self, to fellow members, and to the community in which we live."

Pritz has exemplified the AARP motto, "To serve, not to be served. She has been active in many community organizations, including Job's Daughters, the VFW, the BPW, the YWCA in St. Louis, the Knights of Eastern Star, Rebeccah, White Shrine and the Amvets. Pritz, who has been at SEMC for 15 years, is also a member of the SEMC Auxiliary.

"I belong to a lot of groups," Pritz said. "But I enjoy them all."

Pritz first became involved with the AARP because of her mother.

"After my father passed away, we wanted my mother to be around people, so we took her down to the meetings. She really enjoyed it, in fact, she never missed a meeting, if she could help it," Pritz said.

In order to be a member of the AARP, you must be at least 50 years of age, and belong to the national AARP. The Granite City chapter also collects $2 in dues every year.

The founder of AARP, Ethel Percy Andrus, said in her book Power of Years, "AARP is unique among organizations of older people in that its members believe that aging is a normal and dignified segment of living with potentiality for growth and service, for maintaining one's independence and earning dignity."

The chapter is not in competition with senior citizen clubs that exist primarily for social or recreational activities," Pritz said. "We balance the service goals to self and community and social events. Socializing among our members can provide enjoyment with old friends and the opportunity to meet and make new friendships.

The AARP meetings which are held at the Fellowship Hall on Main Street now draw a crowd. They feature an education program followed by bingo or a dance or some sort of entertainment.

"Recently, we had the police department come in with the police dogs to do a fashion show. We see how the dogs also learned to do so many things. We also had representatives from the police and fire departments talk to us about home safety," Pritz said.

The community service committee recently announced the chapter's two major goals for 1989. The first is to establish a scholarship fund and develop a funding program for scholarships.

"We haven't decided all of the details yet," Pritz said. "It will be for local students." The second goal is to contact local businesses about donations. Businesses who contribute will be recognized with an ad in the group's monthly newsletter which goes out to all members.

The following businesses have contributed to the scholarship: Janet Mills and Associates; Goff and Dittman Florists; Townsend TV; Pioneer Market; Wooden Crafts; The Medicine Shoppe; Marko's Fish House; Alton Van Bank; The First National Bank in Madison; Jerry's Cafeteria and Catering; and Rapid Lube.

"We have had such good response that we will have to make our newsletter bigger," Pritz said.

Raffles and other fund raising events will also be held.

The second goal was to develop a Service Project of the year for each of the regional membership meetings, Pritz said. "Members are asked to donate and encourage others to donate items needed by local organizations."

Unfortunately, said Chicago area physician Dr. Steven Fox, president of Wellspring Gerontological Services, physicians are often unwilling or unable to recognize the needs of treat older adults for alcoholism.

In March, AARP collected used eyeglasses and hearing aids on behalf of the Lions Club. For April, they collected items for the Phoenix Crisis Center.

In May, AARP will be holding their annual Spring Festival Dance.

It will be catered and there will be a band. We usually have at least 300 people come," Pritz said.

"Our goal is to get all of our members involved in our monthly projects, so that each one of us can feel a sense of our own individual contribution to the needs of our community."

The local chapter also had a committee that works with national AARP leaders on various legislative issues designed to benefit seniors. One member also shows recent literature and recommends any books or articles that may be of interest to members.

AARP also offers a palibear service for those without close relatives in the area.

Pritz has some definite goals in mind for her presidency.

"I would like to want to encourage more outside activities that the community can participate in," she said. "I will to encourage more outside activities that the community can participate in," she said.

Anyone interested in becoming an AARP member can contact Pritz at 797-0331 or Geneva Brooks, chair of the membership, at 876-8086.

Fourth of senior citizens said to be chemically dependent

Along with changing eyesight and stiffening joints, there is also a common ailment that is often mistaken for simply getting older — alcoholism.

Recent statistics from the National Institute on Drug Abuse indicate that one out of eight persons over age 65 are physically and psychologically addicted to alcohol. Combined with the high percentage of seniors who take prescription medication, one out of every four persons aged and older is chemically dependent.

Comparing this to this situation is a destructive attitude on the part of family members and health care professionals who minimize the seriousness of the illness, Fox added.

Disability can cover AIDS victims

By Bill Hunot
Social Security Administration

Following are typical questions asked at the local Social Security office.

Q. Can people with AIDS or Acquired Immune Deficiency Syndrome get Social Security disability payments?

A. Social Security can pay disability payments to workers with AIDS.

Disability payments are made to workers who have physical or mental impairments expected to keep them from substantial work for more than a year or to result in death. Applicants who have

AIDS, are currently not working and have had enough work covered by Social Security usually.

People with AIDS or other disabling impairments should contact Social Security at 800-234-

5772 for more information about disability payments.

Q. What is the military during World War II? Will this increase my Social Security benefit?

A. Probably not. Social Security can give you credit for your military service, but 99 percent of the time any work before 1951

is disregarded when Social Security calculates benefits.

Q. My grandmother got a letter in the mail last week asking her to send money to help her pay Social Security. Now she's afraid that her check will be cut. Is

Social Security going broke?

A. There are several private companies that solicit contributions to help them further their lobbying efforts.

Social Security is in excellent financial shape. Surplus assets are being saved for future benefits and the system will be solvent well into the next century.

Disciples of Christ plan ECHO's 100th birthday

ECHO (Emergency Children's Home), known as Christian Children from 1946 to 1978 and as the Christian Orphans' Home from 1889 to 1946, is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year. A range of activities has been planned.

On June 18, Winter and Stomun shoveled wood bark around the trees and shrubs in the Vicary shrubs at the Pontoon Beach Senior Citizens Center.

On June 22, three concrete flower boxes filled with geraniums were donated to the Senior Citizens library on Johnson Road.

On June 25, eight members attended the Edwardsville Garden Club's 50th anniversary Rose Show at Walton's Banquet Center in Glen Carbon. Entertainment was by the Golden Voices.

The July 5 meeting has been changed to July 11, when members will take a trip to the Missouri Botanical Gardens planned.

Members will meet at Stomun's home at 10 a.m.

for national recognition were unsuccessful for 12 years.

In 1894, still without church support, they moved into a building of their own. Finally in 1899, to 1946, is celebrating its 100th anniversary this year. A range of activities has been planned.

Home superintendents changed.

On July 1, friends of ECHO will worship with members of Memorial Christian Church, 3001 Illinois, Ridgefield, Ia. It is at the corner of the 10-acre ECHO campus. This home church for generations of young people who were residents at the home at some time in the past. After church, at 2 p.m. there will be a campus house and a recognition program of guests.

According to a church spokesman, in 1889 six women who shared concern for the homeless and helpless wanted to help, but there were no government funds, welfare system or guidelines for such work. They began a piecemeal effort with all expenses reimbursed. About 100 children were housed at the home. Not even their own Christian Church (Disciples of Christ) would lend any support.

Despite the difficulties, on Feb. 18, 1890, the Christian Orphans' Home, St. Louis opened its doors in a rented building. The six women named their group "The Benevolent Church" and sought the formation of an organized agency to be run through the entire denomination of the Christian Church (Disciples). Attempts to secure financial support were unsuccessful for 12 years.

The Depression of the 30s brought increased need for the home's services but less financial support. Child labor laws were passed and teen-agers could no longer get jobs. The home provided programs for the children, including school, sports, music, arts and crafts, and more.

Times were changing and the home changed again to meet the needs of troubled and abused children.

Currently, ECHO is serving adolescents between the ages of 11-17 who are victims of neglect, abuse, or who have run away from home. The average length of stay is 90 days and the peak service number is 50—half girls and half boys, with all expenses reimbursed. About 100 children are served yearly. Most of the ECHO residents attend public school, but there is a special school on the campus grounds for those with special needs. This special school also enrolls non-residents in attendance.

Through court decrees, ECHO is the legal guardian of children placed there and serves as their temporary home. In return, the home provides food, clothing and shelter. The money is used for helping the children develop positive values, helping them get through various stages of growth and teaching them to manage their own emotions. ECHO has a professional staff trained for this.

Central Christian Church has been an active supporter of the home. There have been members who lived at the home as children, and there have been children who found new homes in the Tri-Cities.

Members of the local church have served as board members and in other capacities at ECHO for over 35 years. The late Marie Gordon was a dedicated board member for a long period of time and she was followed in that position by her husband, John Gordon, after terms were established for board members, according to church representatives. Leigh Parrish also served on the board for two years and is on the ECHO school board, as well as a member of the church.

Both Marie and Dave Parrish of Granite City are members of the Centennial Committee that has been making plans for the home's 100th birthday. Mrs. Parrish remembers her mother, Mrs. Sylvia Tamm, and other ladies of Central Christian Church going to the home in the 1950s or earlier to help prepare apples and peaches as well as old pie crusts for canning. These were donations from farmers and were a major part of the food supply for the children. Also, the women would go to the home at regular intervals to teach the children.

Those who wish more information on the homecoming or information on how they might help the young people now being served should call Leigh Hunter at ECHO, (314) 381-3100.

Ryan: Pump up Canada trade by redoubling efforts

Illinois must redouble its efforts to cultivate commercial relationships with Canada, Lt. Gov. George Ryan said recently at a dinner he co-hosted with George de Rappard, the chief deputy minister for Alberta, Canada.

At the dinner, Ryan re-issued a call for a state trade office in Canada and urged the Legislature to consider the creation of a regional office that will better position Illinois companies to capitalize on opportunities presented by the Free Trade Agreement.

The Alberta government is considering funding for an office in Chicago and hopes to join Ontario and Quebec with a provincial trade presence in the Midwest. Currently, only one state, New York, has a trade office in Canada. But eight Great Lakes states, including Illinois, plan to open a joint liaison office in Toronto to promote trade and tourism.

State news

State taxpayers donate to research

For the fourth consecutive year, state taxpayers contributed more than $100,000 to Alzheimer's Disease Research through the state income-tax checkoff, according to Dr. Bernard J. Turner, state health director. More than $500,000 has been contributed since 1985.

The money will be awarded to researchers in the state who are working to find a cure for Alzheimer's Disease Program facilities. Those awarded grants will be selected by the Alzheimer's Disease Assistance Act Advisory Committee, from among 31 applicants. Illinois is the only state that funds Alzheimer's research through an income-tax checkoff.

Train station signals Amtrak commitment

Gov. James Thompson said an agreement to construct a new Amtrak passenger train station in Normal, with design features to significantly reduce energy costs, signals his commitment to improve rail service in the state. Secretary of Transportation Gregory Baise noted that "the convenience of the new station, due to open in December, combined with the 1986 service improvement which added two trains to the Bloomington-Normal schedule, will result in moderate substantial ridership increases from the area. Furthermore, we hope this application of energy technology will serve as a model for Amtrak in constructing stations throughout the country."

The new station will feature a passive solar design, a solar electric system, thermal and electrical energy storage, energy efficient lighting, an energy management system, and gas-fired air conditioning.

Weight program holding own in success stories

Bertha Koerper was one of the fortunate ones. She never had to face the battle of the bulge, and consequently, she never knew much about nutrition.

So when she added on some extra pounds later in life, she was totally unprepared to handle her new weight problem.

"I knew what I really needed was to learn more about nutrition and the right way to eat," she said.

For anyone who wished to remain anonymous, dieting had been a lifelong struggle. She had tried one diet after another, with mixed results. "I needed the support of a group to help me make more of a commitment," she said.

Both decided to give the Right Weight Diet Class a chance at helping them lose weight, and neither finished the 12-week program disappointed. Koerper shed 15 pounds, while the other erased 17.

"I achieved a part goal. It's a steppingstone to what I ultimately want to lose," said the latter.

The dietitian (Jan Pautler, R.D.) who taught the class really knew her material and presented it well. One of the things I wanted to learn most was cholesterol-control, and the class provided me with that."

The class is taught by a registered dietitian from St. Elizabeth Medical Center, with Vanetta Morger, an exercise physiologist, and Dave Schenk, a social worker from the medical center, serving as guest speakers.

A total of 11 people recently graduated from the class and proved it's possible to lose weight by eating sensibly and exercising regularly.

An average weight loss of 9½ pounds per person was reported during the 12-week session, with the largest drop 18¾ pounds and the smallest, 2¼ pounds.

Designed for persons who are overweight and motivated to make changes in their lives, Right Weight emphasizes eating a well-balanced diet, increasing exercise, and modifying behaviors to support a healthy and slim lifestyle.

Those who are 50 pounds or more overweight and desire to lose weight safely and effectively should be under a doctor's supervision, said Excy Basuel, chief dietitian at SEMC. St. Elizabeth Medical Center also fills this need by offering an inpatient program.

A recent report issued by the Institute of Food Technologists cites data suggesting that no less than 34 million Americans are overweight, including 13 million who are severely obese.

Participants in the Right Weight Diet Class follow a well-balanced diet based on an appropriate calorie level determined by an SEMC dietitian.

Koerper said she found the class to be "an all-around very educational program" and would recommend it to others.

"I learned a lot from the class," she said. "It taught me how important it is to eat three meals a day, and that you can almost eat anything you want. You just have to modify how much you eat. If you splurge one time, you have to hold off for a little while."

She said she also learned how important exercise was to effective weight loss. "It was amazing to see how much faster you can lose weight and how much more you can lose just by adding in that little bit of exercise; it doesn't take much."

Another session is planned for September. For more information or to register, call the SEMC Dietary Department at 3492.

Madison County sponsors free V.P. shuttle

Free V.P. shuttle service in downtown St. Louis during the 1989 V.P. Fair will be provided this year courtesy of the Madison County Convention & Visitors Bureau. It was announced recently by Chairman Nellie Hagnauer.

A sponsor to defray the cost of the service had been sought unsuccessfully, he said, and it appeared, V.P. Fair organizers stepped forward that there would be no shuttle service this year for the expected 3 million visitors to the Fair.

"We believe that the V.P. Fair is important to the region, and the shuttle greatly reduces traffic congestion in the vicinity of the Fair," Hagnauer said. "So in a spirit of regional cooperation, rather than lose the shuttle service this year, we offered to provide it ourselves to many Illinois people who will go to the Fair and use the shuttle."

For those who drive to the Fair, there are approximately 40 parking facilities and much more parking to the west and north of the City along the route of the free V.P. shuttle.

It will operate every five minutes from noon until after the nightly fireworks display July 1, 2 and 4.

It will not operate on July 3, which is a normal workday.

The shuttle route is west on Washington Avenue to 18th, south on 18th to Clark, east on Clark to 14th, north on 14th to Convention Plaza, east on Convention Plaza to 3rd Street and south on 3rd Street to Washington Avenue.

Kids and drugs: a special report

GRANITE CITY JOURNAL—June 21, 1989

Parents, other adults help kids get alcohol

Parents and adults too often just wink and turn their heads when minors are caught drinking alcohol, some experts say.

Kirkwood High School said some parents are allowing their kids to drink at home and even providing alcohol at parties. They say "everyone does it. I can't stop it," he said.

The Doherty, a south St. Louis County mother of four, found that out when her oldest daughter was driving age.

"Some parents actually rent rooms at hotels for their kids to have parties. They say it's better than having them out on the street," said Doherty, whose daughter just graduated high school. You think you know people, but when you think they'll break you up, you can find they're out there all by themselves."

Parents aren't the only supply sources. They range from older siblings to the friendly guy who appears but stays off the teenager standing outside a liquor store. Such behavior actually encourages and enables adolescent consumption of alcohol, one of the most used and abused drugs, experts say.

"Just say the word drugs, and alcohol doesn't enter a person's mind," said Barry Hagar, director of the Christian Hospital Recovery Center.

"Somehow it's OK to drink on prom night but if your son or daughter got high or was using soft drugs, it would be a different matter," said Claire Nelson, drug intervention counselor at Lindbergh High School.

Phil, 16, of north St. Louis County, said his parents don't want him drinking, but he does anyway. "I do it. I'll be in some trouble, but it won't be death," Phil said. "It won't be superglued to the bed or anything. If I got busted for drugs, they'd flip."

"We act like it's something that's not capable of killing," said Delbert Boone, community relations representative for Parkside Lodge of St. Louis in Berkeley. "Don't you think it's about time to respect it for what it is?"

"We never get a kid (in treatment) that doesn't use alcohol," Hagar said.

By the time kids reach the eighth grade they have already developed a belief of what is a soft drug and what is a hard drug, Boone said.

"They consider beer, Jack Daniels, speed, downers and pot as soft drugs," he said. "The implication is that you'll have a soft landing with the soft drugs. I'll tell you, it don't look like those landings are too soft to me."

Preparing this series ...

A team of Journal staff members spent two months investigating drug use by suburban students to prepare this special report. Team members included Phyllis Hyman, Matt Hall, Scott Cousins, Andy Siering, Craig Martin, Paul Guggina, Dan Holman and Dennis Grubaugh. The series was written by Hall and Hyman.

Responses were part of locally administered student opinion surveys to senior high and middle school students in 1987. The surveys are part of the Missouri Department of Elementary and Secondary Education drug-free schools and communities program and were developed in conjunction with the Missouri departments (two different departments) of Mental Health and Health. The surveys are given every two years. Results of 1985 surveys are still being tabulated.

The Lindbergh, Mehlville and Pattonville school districts were among 17 area school districts asked for the 1987 survey results. The Ferguson-Florissant and Hazelwood school districts provided portions of the survey results. Other districts declined to release results, could not find results, did not participate in the program at the time, used different survey providers or did not have results.

As a range the above results are considered by many experts as typical for any school district or community in the St. Louis area, and should not be considered a reflection on how effective or ineffective drug education and intervention programs are in those specific districts.

A typical party

B booze, drugs plentiful at teen bashes

(Editor's note: Paul Guggina, a youthful-looking 23-year-old Journal reporter, recently attended a typical high school drinking party.)

By Paul Guggina

Staff writer

It's 10:30 p.m. in west St. Louis County, and if you don't know where your children are they probably are at this party.

The prom is tomorrow night, so the 100 or so kids in this yard are taking it easy. Not as rowdy as some nights. Some nights things get out of hand — like the time Sandy got raped, or when that guy with the gun came after Brian.

Tonight, I am told, the music isn't as loud as usual and the beer isn't as plentiful.

"This is slow," said my 17-year-old companion, Julie.

But there is beer: two quarter-kegs of Busch at the foot of tree in the middle of the yard; cases of Bud Light, Michelob and Michelob Dry packed into an old refrigerator in the garage-turned-guest-house; a green plastic trash barrel filled with ice and cans of Budweiser, Busch and Bud Light; full coolers in all shapes and sizes scattered throughout the yard.

The natural question: Where do teen-agers get beer?

"Larry's got a friend who works at 7-Eleven and he gets him all he wants," explains Mark, a skinny kid with glasses.

Shelly, a cute, 16-year-old blonde, said there's a liquor store down the street from her high school that never has carded her. Tonight she bought two cases for herself and her friends.

Other sources include older siblings, friends with fake IDs, friends who work at liquor stores. A last-resort measure involves hanging around outside the liquor store and asking compassionate-looking customers to "do me a favor."

There's pot here, too. Grass, weed, ganja, whatever. In a dark corner of the yard three guys "spark up" a joint. Before long, a small crowd gathers around to get in the spirit of things.

There are three joints being passed among 12 kids. It's a normal mix of kids — some stoners, some jocks, some brains, some "sosher," the latter is short for sociables.

The "d" and "e" are from Carlene, the girls soccer team. Graduation. Getting wasted after the prom. Sarah's latest abortion.

"Again?" Shelly says. "God, she is so thick. How can she do that to herself?"

This yard is a popular hangout in this part of the county. It's big enough for a couple hundred kids to mill around comfortably, and it's set far enough from the street and the rest of the neighborhood that the cops don't bother anybody. The owners don't mind because they'd rather have their kids drinking in their own backyard than in a car somewhere else.

Most everybody gets drunk. One guy brags after drinking his 11th beer, "I'm so shit-faced."

The few who stay relatively sober are quick to offer their inebriated peers rides, and there are a few who ask to spend the night so they can sleep it off in the guest house.

Around midnight the party breaks up. Kids gather up their coolers and leave in groups of five or six, piling into old Chevy Novas and new Volkswagen Rabbits.

They leave happy — laughing, shouting:

"See you tomorrow."

• Drug use

County alone, according to area police department estimates.

"There's one point that needs to get across to people, it's that just because a kid makes straight A's, is captain of the football team, or is captain of the pom-pom squad, doesn't mean they're immune to the peer pressure," Hagar said. "These kids get overlooked because of all the positive things they are doing."

Experts agree that the level of current experimentation and use represents an epidemic situation that will result in many kids facing addiction.

A 1986-87 school-year survey of middle school and high school students in St. Louis County — one of the few areawide local studies conducted and the latest available — indicates that in the year prior to being asked,

* A third of the high school students and one in 10 middle school students had smoked pot.

* Three out of four high school students and half of the middle school students had drunk alcohol.

* About 14 percent of high school students had used speed (amphetamine), another 6 percent had used cocaine, nearly 4 percent had used crack cocaine, the cheap, more addictive and more dangerous variant of cocaine, and nearly 12 percent of the high school students had sniffed inhalants such as correction fluid, gasoline, glue or the contents of aerosol spray cans.

* About 8 percent of middle school students had used speed, nearly 3 percent had used cocaine, slightly more than 3 percent had used crack cocaine and about 11 percent had used inhalants.

"Just about every kid experiments," said Renee Furniss, 17, who recently graduated from McCluer North High School in Florissant. Furniss, a cheerleader at the school, is recovering from addiction to alcohol, marijuana and speed (amphetamines). "If you wanted to get high on a daily basis, you could, but that goes for any high school," she said.

Lucy, 16, started using marijuana, speed and alcohol last year. "My best friend always told me I needed to quit," said Lucy, who will be a junior at Granite City High School this fall. "I always said, 'Man, this is just being a teenager.'

The 16-year-old went through a drug rehabilitation program in Edwardsville.

Chris Miller, 17, a recent graduate of Ladue High School and a non-drug user, said, "If you want to find them (drugs), you find them. I think they're pretty surprised," but many and which students are using.

"It's everywhere," said Ann, 17, of Webster Groves High School. "Most of the kids in junior high are already using it now." She was referring to cocaine, and nearly 12 percent of the high school students had sniffed inhalants such as correction fluid, gasoline, glue or the contents of aerosol spray cans.

"It's pretty bad," Fred said. "The vast majority of the kids have tried drugs or alcohol, mostly just once or twice."

Tony, 15, of south St. Louis County, and his friends used to drop acid, a hallucinogenic drug, and go walking through the closed Koch Hospital near 1255 and Telegraph Road in south St. Louis. Tony was really cool when you're high," he said.

Experts acknowledge that many kids can apparently experiment with drugs without developing serious drug dependency problems or behavior problems, but they stress that experimentation is dangerous for all children.

The only factor that has really been shown to put one at high risk (of addiction) is genetics," said Dr. David Ohlms, medical director of the St. Louis Program for Adolescents and medical director of the St. Charles Program at St. Joseph Health Center in St. Charles. A family history of addiction is the only statistically proven factor that can be used as a predictor for an individual becoming an addict, he said.

Jerry, 17, began frequent use of marijuana and some LSD late last year with about 10 friends from Hazelwood West High School. "I was the only one who got the bad end of the deal (so far)," said Jerry, who is now trying to get the others to stop using.

"My girlfriend was an experimenter, nothing big," said Laurie, 18, who became addicted to alcohol, marijuana, cocaine and speed after first trying drugs shortly before beginning the seventh grade at Ferguson Middle

"It's a risky time for the most together of kids ... An important consideration is that (drug experimentation) is for many kids a rite of passage. Their parents rebelled with something, and so did their grandparents."

That scared me. I knew I did as much (pot) as they did."

Rachel, 17, of Florissant, said she, while drunk, was date raped by a friend's older brother during her freshman year. "It was scary," she said. "It was my first time experiencing rape, and I remember saying, 'No, I don't want to.' He said, 'Shut up, you're too drunk to know what you want.'"

The most significant danger, however, is the health risk associated with drug use, the likelihood that an untreated addiction eventually will kill them.

The human cost of drug addiction and experimentation doesn't always show up as overdose or death or health damage from prolonged use. It also includes the effects of drug-related traffic fatalities, suicides or homicides.

Kopolow said the leading cause of death among adolescents and young adults ages 15 to 24 is alcohol-related traffic accidents. Up to as many as 80 percent of the teenagers who attempt suicide have been drinking alcohol, some studies have shown.

Societal costs of drug abuse among adults and children in Missouri in 1980 totaled more than $2.7 billion, according to figures provided by the National Council on Alcoholism and Drug Abuse in St. Louis. Costs included treatment expenses, reduced job productivity and damage from car crashes.

Experimentation with drugs and their consequent abuse by some is a fact faced by every community in the St. Louis suburban area, from affluent

Madison High valedictorian skipping summer vacation

By Nicole Vaughn
Staff writer

This summer will be anything but a vacation for Nicole Royston.

This year's valedictorian at Madison High School has been working full-time at Union Electric through a paid internship program since school ended.

But while she works diligently, Nicole insists that she is still a "crazy" person.

"I'm not a books person all the time," she said. "Just when I have to be."

Last summer she took pre-calculus and English composition classes at Washington University. Even she admits it can be difficult to find time for school.

"You have to make time for it," Nicole said. But she is being careful not to fall into the "party trap" that many students do when they first go away to college.

So careful, in fact, that she turned down a scholarship from the University of Illinois.

"I could just see the setting; I know too many people up there," she said. "There's some people forget that you have to stay in college in order to party at college."

Instead, Nicole will attend Purdue University in West Lafayette, Ind., where she plans to major in electrical engineering.

But moving is something Nicole is accustomed to. Her family moved from Madison to

Nicole Royston

Edwardsville last November but Nicole was able to finish school at MHS.

"I just couldn't switch my senior year," she said.

The daughter of Charles and Sandra Rancher, Nicole was active in several MHS functions. She was a band student for six years and while at MHS served as vice-president and treasurer of the band. She was president of the National Honor Society, yearbook photographer, a school newspaper columnist, and a member of the drama club.

(Editor's note: Nicole could not be reached for a feature that ran in the June 8 Press-Record.)

Marshall holds annual school picnic

Cookson was attempting to revive his stepfather by administering mouth-to-mouth resuscitation when police arrived at the home at 4:50 a.m. Saturday, a report said.

Edie was lying on his back on the front porch, an officer said.

Paramedics arrived shortly afterward and continued working on Edie but could not revive him, a report said.

Apparently there was an argument between Cookson and his stepfather which led to a fight, Knight said. A weapon was recovered at the scene.

Jury rules fall accidental

Nevius said that he, Franklin and another worker were working on the line. Franklin, a pipefitter, was standing on the grating and watch for fire while Nevius was working.

But following a coffee break, Franklin and the three workers traded places. Franklin stood on the walkway. Nevius testified that he knew about the removed grating but was unsure if Franklin did.

Nevius said that he was surprised to see Franklin coming up to see the other workers.

Nevius said he continued up another ladder and turned to see Franklin disappear through the hole.

"He stepped inside the hole and went straight down," Nevius said.

Larry Greer, safety manager for Clark Oil, testified that it was his opinion that Franklin was aware of the removed grating. Greer estimated that a two-foot gap was left.

Greer also testified that warning signs are normally posted at such sites when grating is removed. "There was none put up there," Greer said of the Hartford site.

Butch Peterson of William Schooley Law Offices in Granite City represented the Franklin family. He said no suits against the company had been filed.

Pontoon approves 3 licenses

PONTOON BEACH — The Village Board approved three business license applications and acted on numerous other requests during a May board session Tuesday night.

Approval was given to the request of McJunkin Corp. of Charles City, Wyo., to build a wholesale distributorship for pipe valves and fittings on Illinois 111. The company has a branch in St. Louis.

The second application approved was for Florence R. Linn of Madison who intends to open a real estate office at 4025 Pontoon Road.

The third license was given to Arctic Air Conditioning Service Co., Inc., which wants to open a heating, plumbing and cooling business at 3069 Lake Drive, through Patricia and Mark Newkirk.

The board received a letter from local farmer Gordon Gass, who has been leasing and farming a small parcel of village property along Illinois 111.

Because the village recently sold the property, and as a previously agreed upon contract, Gass asked to be reimbursed $661 for rent paid in advance and for any crops that he cannot harvest. The village decided to take action until it can confirm the validity of his request.

"They had to make a decision and they did it right," Irv State, township manager, said. "And it was a good one."

Ridgeway said that a successor to him as town clerk will be discussed during the regular meeting at 7 p.m. next Monday.

Ridgeway, who will be 63 July 1, is a purchasing agent for St. Elizabeth Medical Center. He and his wife, Betty June, have two grown sons.

Vadalabene said $440,000 was

The property was sold to George Gundlach, who is planning to add heating and plumbing warehouse and retail business.

In other action, the board received a letter from the Citizens Utility Board, a consumer advocacy group for electric, rather than appointing members to the Illinois Commerce Commission.

The board took no action.

The board received a letter from the Illinois Environmental Protection Agency concerning the Chain of Rocks Landfill, which has applied for two permits under the category of general municipal waste to allow the dumping of porcelain enamel sludge and incinerator ash at the site.

Under zoning Board of Appeals action, the village agreed with a recommendation to allow Danny Williams, 4109 N. Dixie, to operate a heating and air conditioning business out of his home.

Clark Mary Warren presented a preliminary plat for Hogan Manor Subdivision on Kelly Drive. The developer, Hogan Development, will include 24 homes. The village approved the plat for Hogan.

Two resolutions for applications for Community Development Block Grant funds through Madison County were approved. The first would support a water main extension from Illinois 162 south on Lake Drive, including Virginia Street. The second would fund a water main extension for the Pontoon Beach Public Water District, allowing installation of a loop that would provide more water pressure to the northern end of the village.

Trustees also approved the purchase of a video camera for the health inspector.

Under old business, Trustee Louis Whitzell, chairman of the village's Tax Increment Financing Commission, said the closing of the Pontoon Beach Public Water District will encompass all other costs.

It was also announced that a float of the Pontoon Beach Explorer Post 255, sponsored by Police Department, took a first-place trophy in the Shriner Parade in Granite City.

Bill includes visitor center

The Illinois Senate has passed legislation creating a civic center fund in the Department of Commerce and Community Affairs that would provide $100 million in funding for bond sales.

"The funding for civic centers throughout the state is an investment in each and every community that has a civic center is important," said Sen. Sam Vadalabene, D-Edwardsville, the sponsor.

Vadalabene said $440,000 was approved for the construction of a visitors' center at the Lewis and Clark Historic site near Mitchell.

"Hundreds of thousands of visitors travel each year to see sites associated with the Lewis and Clark National Historic Trail. Illinois can establish itself as one of the prime interest points with the development of a public visitors' center."

The center is to include an interpretive/orientation program, exhibits associated with Lewis and Clark documents and artifacts, public restrooms and operational space.

The existing site is on flood land. It is not properly maintained and is subject to vandalism. Development of this visitors' center will restore Illinois to its rightful place in the history of the Lewis and Clark expedition.

"It will benefit the local economy through additional tourism," Vadalabene said.

NOW also is pushing the Legislature to pass bills on marital rape and unpaid family medical leave.

The bill on marital rape replaces what Gov. James Thompson vetoed in 1983 Illinois Criminal Sexual Assault Law, which had included protection for married women who were victims of criminal sexual assault by their husbands, Lauren said.

"We are merely asking for the state to put back what the governor took out," she said.

The law currently allows spouses to file criminal charges in sex assault cases even though there has been an additional element of injury, threat of life or use of a weapon.

The proposed bill would allow a spouse to press charges for forced sex, even if there is no physical contact without the spouse having to prove she was beaten or threatened, Lauren said.

Another bill NOW is pushing in the Legislature deals with family medical leave.

VA lowers top home loan interest

The Department of Veterans Affairs (VA) has announced a reduction in its maximum home loan interest rate from 10.5 percent to 10 percent.

In announcing the change, VA Secretary Edward J. Goss said, "Our action reflects continued investor confidence in the economy as well as current financial market conditions in which investors are willing to accept lower yields on long-term investments."

The lower rate, effective June 5, is the first change made by the VA since it was elevated to a full-fledged department on March 15.

The decrease means that payments on a typical VA home loan of $75,000 will be $335 less annually.

The last change in the VA interest rate occurred last Dec. 19 when it rose from 10 percent to 10.5 percent.

Also effective June 5, the VA will decrease by one-half percentage point the maximum rates for Standardized Mortgages to 10.25 percent, home improvement loans to 11.5 percent, manufactured home loans to 12.5 percent, manufactured home lot-only loans to 10 percent, and manufactured home and lot loans to 12 percent.

VA home loans may be used to purchase, improve or refinance a house or condominium, and to purchase or refinance a manufactured home.

Sealift research may help economy

By Jason Moody

Staff writer

WASHINGTON — Increased funding for research and development in the merchant marine industry will enhance national security and economic competitiveness, General Duane Cassidy of Scott's Air Force Base recently told a panel of federal lawmakers.

A member of the Defense Department's U.S. Transportation Command, Cassidy was a chief witness at a Senate Armed Services Committee hearing focused on ways to improve sealift technology and adapt it to ship ammunition, fuel, and supplies for sustained combat operations on foreign soil.

"It is essential we have the capability to build the strategic not only for our trade, but also for national defense," Cassidy told Senate panel, chaired by Edward Kennedy, D-Mass.

The Transportation Command, headquartered at Scotts AFB, directs the air, sea, and land transportation needed to deploy and sustain U.S. forces worldwide. Created in October 1987, the agency coordinates mobile operations between all four services.

A decline in the U.S. merchant marine industry has jeopardized the ability to quickly provide the sealift ships essentially for protracted military operations, according to Cassidy.

The first step in solving the sealift problem is to recognize we have a national problem with the merchant marine industry," Cassidy said.

"Historically, our sealift strength has been to rely on the merchant marine which has a long, proud tradition of wartime service to this nation both in support of national defense and support of the wartime economy," he said in a prepared statement.

"We must be able to continue to develop new shipbuilding technology, new ship design, and propulsion systems and once again be a trend setter, not follower," he told the committee.

Today, according to Cassidy, U.S.-flagged ships only carry 4 percent of the world's shipping tonnage, leading to a shortfall in the shipbuilding industry and in advanced sealift technology.

Cassidy urged lawmakers to increase funding for the National Shipbuilding Research Program, joint effort between the Navy and merchant marine sector to spur the development of the nation's shipbuilding industry.

"We must be able to continue to develop new shipbuilding technology, new ship design, and propulsion systems and once again be a trend setter, not follower," he told the committee.

GRANITE CITY JOURNAL—June 21, 1989

Russia and Central Asia key discussion topics for Travelers

Travelers Abroad held its May dinner meeting at Jerry's Cafe with 21 members and one guest, Mildred King, present.

Dr. Alice Purdes, president, conducted a brief business meeting and the group decided to continue the November and December meetings into a holiday party on Nov. 27. Congratulations were extended to Lillie Ann and Edmund Firmer who will celebrate 40 years of traveling in August.

A moment of silent meditation was observed for a long-time member, the late Wilbert Engleke.

Bethara Williams presented the program on "Russia and Central Asia" which she visited about three months ago. Six cities were visited — Moscow and Leningrad in the region of Russia; Tbilisi in the Republic of Georgia; and Samarkand, Bukhara, and Tashkent in the republic of Uzbek. The first three cities named are on the European continent; the last three are in Asia, but all are part of the USSR.

Reviewing briefly the vital statistics of the USSR, the group learned that its size is 3.6 million square miles, or about 5,000 miles from east to west. There are 11 time zones and 287,000,000 people, with two-thirds of them living in cities and towns. The USSR is composed of 15 republics. The capital of the USSR is Moscow and the government headquarters are in the Kremlin in the center of Moscow. Moscow is also the center of the Soviet Union.

The tour group was forewarned about long underwear and snow boots and were prepared, but this year in Moscow, the weather was the warmest July day and February that it had been in 110 years; it was in the 30's each day. The Neva River, in Leningrad, always freezes about mid-November and stays frozen until mid-April and this year the Neva did not freeze, she said.

Meals were all prepaid with the hotel selecting the menus. There was plenty of food if one was not picky. Bread was not popular with tourists, cabbage at nearly every meal along with onions, rice, and carrots, was not appealing.

Room-temperature Pepsi and orange were the standard drinks along with bottled mineral water "which was terrible," Williams said.

The group was warned not to drink any water or use any ice, she said.

In Moscow the group toured the Kremlin, including its beautiful State Arsenal which is now the oldest museum in the USSR and contains unbelievable jewels and gold. In Red Square the group saw the changing of the guard at Lenin's Mausoleum but the lines were too long for them to enter. While walking near Red Square, the group saw a Baskin-Robbins.

The Moscow underground system, known as the "Metro," is the most luxurious underground railway system in the world. Walking past one of the underground lines, the group was able to see five different stations — all decorated differently — with mosaics or chandeliers or stained glass, art, etc.

On the 20th floor, off the underground in the midst of the Moscow crowd was a challenge, but no one got lost.

Flying over 2,000 miles south of Moscow, the group visited Samarkand, Bukhara, and Tashkent, which is the capital of the Uzbek republic and has a population of 2.2 million.

In Samarkand the group learned there were only 150 miles from Afghanistan and 400 miles from China. Samarkand is noted for its beautiful Registan Square, made up of three huge madrasas built in the 14th century composed of over 20 madrasas. The Gur Amir mausoleum where Tamerlane, an important ruler in the 14th century, is buried.

Bukhara also has many mosques and the 130-foot tall Kalyan Minaret, built in 1128, dominates the city skyline. In the center of the city is an eight-acre walled fortress which dates back to the 7th Century.

Williams said the USSR is currently restoring many of these beautiful buildings and the amount of gold and leaf being used in the restoration is amazing.

Tashkent is a very modern city now, it was almost completely destroyed by an earthquake in 1966. Few of its ancient buildings remain.

Tbilisi with a population of one million is the capital of the republic of Georgia and was also on the caravan/silk route. It is surrounded by the Caucasus Mountains and is reached by the Georgia-Militia Highway which goes through Tbilisi.

is housed in a former religious seminary where Stalin was a student until he was dismissed for his political activities.

The Republic of Georgia became a Christian nation in 329 A.D. and the first Christian Church was built here in 337 A.D. The tour group visited a church within the city of Tbilisi, a series of Gothic arches. They also visited the Dvani Monastery, right off the Georgia Military Highway, and were told that it had become an active church in Georgia with a priest assigned there. It is one of the oldest Christian Churches in the world.

Leningrad was established in 1147 and reclaimed from the sea and is composed of more than 100 islands and more than 300 bridges.

The tourists visited the Peter and Paul Fortress and learned that it was always a prison for political prisoners. The cathedral within the fortress contains large marble tombs of all the Russian czars.

The group also saw St. Isaac's Cathedral, now a museum, which is the third or fourth largest cathedral in the world. They also visited the Hermitage, which is five large buildings containing over 2,500,000 artworks.

While in the Central Asian cities and in Tbilisi, the friendly population was curious about the travelers.

When exchanging money legally, or ruble cost about $1.65 American money. The black market was everywhere. Individuals wanted to change money at the travellers who walk down the street or in the hotels or airports. The going rate at first was five rubles for $1 American.

Later the rate increased to six rubles, and in Leningrad, it was 10 rubles for $1 American.

The next meeting will be on Sept. 25. Others in attendance were Betty Townsend, Marguerite Barker, Anne Petroff, Dorothy Hoedebeck, Mary Evangelista, Eunice Hatcher, Dorothy Ruff, Julianne Hatcher, Nina Dittman, Virginia Segar, Emma Schoen and Marge O'Neill.

Musicians take advantage of synthesizer

By Paul A. Harris
Staff writer

Long rejected by musical purists as a "prob" sound device, the synthesizer has emerged in the 1980s as an instrument with all of the potential versatility of the guitar or saxophone. Recent recordings by several highly acclaimed electronic musicians—composers—have a very wide range of sensibilities.

New Yorker Suzanne Ciani (pronounced CHAH-nee), who comes from background in commercial sound production, has composed original corporate IDs and television commercials—uses electronic instruments to generate a rather sensuous sound scape.

Ciani's third recording, "Neverland," is a trifle, in feeling, ranging from nostalgic to erotic arousal. The latter is especially in evidence on "Lumiere," an environmental sound samples a bit of the "Lumiere" film, the composer's voice processed by a vocoder. "Neverland" also features music Ciani composed for the documentary film "Mother Teressa."

Classically trained Texas multi-instrumentalist Ray Lynch uses electronic instruments in conjunction with conventional acoustic ones, to create a propulsive hybrid sound that draws from pop, eastern and baroque music. Since its release in 1985, his landmark recording "Drop Breakfast" has hovered near the top of Billboard magazine's New Age chart.

Lynch's third recording for Music West is "Blue Thing" An atmospheric mysterious quality woven into a fabric of simplicity makes his lyrically inclined compositions appealing. Though they tend to be multilayered, Lynch's recordings never seem crowded. For instance, "Clouds Below Your Knees," scored for synthesizers and flute, has a beautifuly transparent, almost exceeding quality.

Stevie Roach, an outstanding electronic musician from the West Coast, has a sound that can be dark and emphatically mysterious on his new double disc release, "Dreamtime Return."

In addition to synthesizers, the music on "Dreamtime Return" features a variety of native Australian instruments such as the didjeridoo and the rain stick, as well as vocals by aboriginal "song men." There are broad ranges of tempos and textures in this lengthy recording; some of the most fascinating pieces possess the magic of ancient primitive cultures.

Greek electronic composer and multi-instrumentalist Vangelis is famed both for his outstanding film scores ("Blade Runner," "Chariots of Fire") and his unusual recordings as a headliner, which include the ingenious cinematic audio collage "The Friends of Mr. Cairo," done in collaboration with Yes vocalist Jon Anderson.

Direct" Vangelis' latest release continues and expands this setting-artist's specialty. Vangelis' sculpted sound on an expansive, grand scale. He shares with Lynch a rhythmic sense of freedom, creating the propulsive feel that enhanced the beach scenes in "Chariots of Fire." The compositions on "Direct" will live up to titles like "The Motion of Stars," "The Oracle of Apollo" and "Intergalactic Radio Station."

GRANITE CITY JOURNAL—June 21, 1989

EASY BEANS AND RICE in sultry Cuban style lets the cook play until dinnertime is at hand.

Early bird can play late with dinner due

Time is at a premium in the summer. Warm weather beckons everyone outside, especially out of the kitchen. This is the time of year when do-ahead dishes featuring fresh, light and whole-some summer fare can be real daylight time-savers.

Here are some ideas for meals that can be prepared ahead of time, requiring just minutes of final preparation before serving:

• Soups are great standbys for a hot day. Canned and summer soups often can be prepared days in advance and kept in the refrigerator. In many cases, their flavors benefit from a day or more of chilling.

• Salads also can be good make-ahead dishes. Since fresh fruits and vegetables do start to lose nutrients once they are cut, it is best to leave preparation of simple tossed salads until as late as possible.

However, many salads are meant to be served chilled and require at least several hours of refrigeration.

• Make-ahead entrees include all-time summer favorites like cold, roasted meats, including chicken, turkey and lean beef. Stews, casseroles and many pasta dishes also lend themselves to advance assembly or cooking.

The store extremely well and their flavors only get better with reheating.

• Summer desserts are one of the easiest courses to make ahead. Canned, frozen desserts such as low-fat yogurt mousse, fruit-filled gelatin molds, or scrumptious fruit ices are real treats on a warm summer evening.

Beans and Rice Cuban simply but deliciously combines hearty ingredients that can serve as a main course or as a side dish in smaller amounts. Each part of the recipe, including the rice, can be prepared ahead of time, then easily reheated at meal time for a meal both fast and nutritious. Bake wholegrain muffins in advance to serve with it.

Beans and rice cubano

2 tbs. olive oil
1 large green pepper, chopped
2 cloves garlic, crushed
(16 oz.) cans black beans
1/2 tsp. oregano
1/2 tsp. vinegar
3 pinches, minced (optional)
5 cups hot cooked brown rice

Heat olive oil in skillet. Add pepper and garlic. Sauté until softened.

Add black beans, oregano, vinegar and pinmios. Cover. Simmer until heated through. Taste and correct seasoning.

Makes about 6 servings (1 1/2 cups each) with 3 gm. fat and about 328 calories each.

LEMON SPONGE PUDDING comes baked in delectable style according to step-by-step directions, with a warm raspberry sauce for topping.

Lemon adds zest, raspberries sweeten top of baked pudding

In the past, milk was scalded to make pudding that would not curdle. In this easy recipe, evaporated milk serves the same purpose. Evaporated milk gives smooth, hearty texture and allows the pudding to bake evenly throughout when blended with egg yolks, sugar, flour, lemon juice, butter and lemon zest.

Beat egg whites until stiffly beaten into the milk mixture just at the end of mixing; lends that intriguing padding to its quality.

Baking the pudding in a water bath, or bain marie, as the French call it, ensures that it does not scorched or curdle during cooking.

To test for doneness, insert a table knife halfway between the center and edge of each pudding. When the knife comes out clean, the pudding is done.

While the pudding bakes, prepare the warm Raspberry Sauce to spoon on top to serve at once.

Baked lemon sponge pudding

2 eggs, separated
cup evaporated milk
1/2 cup sugar
1/2 cup flour
3 tbsp. lemon juice
2 tbsp. butter or margarine, melted
2 tbsp. grated lemon zest
Raspberry Sauce
Lemon zest

In medium bowl, beat egg yolks with wire whisk. Blend in evaporated milk, 1/2 cup sugar, flour, lemon juice, butter and 2 teaspoons lemon zest.

In small mixer bowl, beat egg whites until soft peaks form. Gradually add 1/4 cup sugar; beating just until stiff peaks form and sugar is dissolved. Do not overbeat. Carefully fold beaten egg whites into lemon mixture. Spoon into six 1/2-cup ungreased baking dishes. Place dishes in 13-by-9-inch baking pan. Fill outer pan with hot water to about 1 inch from bottom. Bake in 350° oven 35 to 45 minutes or until light golden brown. Carefully remove dishes from hot water bath. Spoon warm Raspberry Sauce over each and sprinkle with lemon zest. Serve immediately.

Raspberry Sauce: In small saucepan, combine 1 1/2 cups (12-ounce package) whole, unsweetened frozen raspberries and 1/4 cup sugar. Cook stirring until sugar is dissolved. Puree in blender. Strain mixture through sieve into bowl to remove seeds. Serve warm.

Soulard Market festival to offer farmers' best

By Janice Denham
Food editor

If older is better, then this "taste" of Soulard should be delicious.

Actually, the tasting is new, although historic Soulard Farmer's Market was established as a market 210 years ago. In the past the farmers always have celebrated their harvest in the fall, but this year they're getting out the bandwagon early to lay out a red carpet for the farm-fresh products that are starting to arrive from Missouri and Illinois farms.

Robert Geigle, market master, says: "We've got the floors shining. Everybody feels great about the place. If you really want to come like grandma, you've got to go to the market site."

From Thursday to Saturday (June 22 to 24), the fairest of the farm will match the merriest of the market to send home the best of the berries. The market, Smith and Lafayette Aves., is open 8 a.m. to 5 p.m. with festivities beginning at about 10 a.m. each day.

If the berries are not quite ripe for picking, there will be plenty of other local crops to take home, Geigle says.

"The people here say everything is a little early this year, so local crops will be starting about June 25," he says.

He expects to have, in addition to all the regular produce, a few local tomatoes beginning to show, green beans, radishes, onions, green kidney beans and perhaps some of the rhubarb. And he thinks there is a good chance the market will boast the first of the peaches and raspberries of the season.

Garnet Eggers of Flora-saint, the new watermelon queen who fittingly was crowned on Produce Row last week, will oversee seed-splitting contests throughout the market days of Agricultural Days. The southern Missouri crop of watermelons should start to arrive about July 1 with the local melon market expecting its second major出货 to the demand due to flooding in Florida and dry weather in Texas. Trophies will be awarded those who take the contests seriously, as well as some of those who don't.

With all those expressions on the seed spitters will be hard to beat for shuttersburgs, so from 10:30 a.m. to 2:30 p.m. Saturday professional photographers will be on hand to give tips and lectures on how to get the best pictures on the spot. It will be an ideal opportunity for anyone from the very young to the not-so-young to become a better photographer. The Photo Club of Suburban Journals will be among those offering suggestions.

University of Missouri Extension nutrition specialist Cynthia Farmer will be available from 10 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. each day to direct people on preserving food. She will check gauges on pressure cookers for $2 each.

John Whelan, also with University Extension, will give tips on how to get the best bean and tomato yields and give other gardening tips Friday and Saturday.

Donna Carter of the Missouri Egg Council will demonstrate various uses of fresh eggs from 10 a.m. to 2 p.m. Thursday and Saturday.

Missouri products will be for sale as well. Among them will be a variety of juice flavors from St. James Grape Juice Co. and confections from Knodl's Bakery in Flora-saint. The Missouri Kidney Foundation will offer cookbooks. Crafts made by Soulard residents will be available. Not only will local honey be for sale, but everyone can get a piece at the bees that make it.

Rounding out the event will be the true Taste of Soulard in the park pavilion, where for a small fee local restaurants will offer samples of their delicious fare.

"We expect and always get a lot of people coming back to the area whose families lived or shopped here," Geigle says. "Soulard's first fair dates the market back 30 years. Mike Schmitz will celebrate the 75th anniversary of his meat market here this fall. It's always a lot of fun to see them."

The market itself was founded by French aristocrat Gabriel Cerre and became a public market at the bidding of his family when it later was deeded to the city.

Blintz cheese ring

(2 3 oz. each) pkg. cream cheese cup 100 percent bran cereal
(2 7.5 oz. pkg.) refrigerated biscuits
(10 biscuits each) cup granulated sugar
tsp. cinnamon
tbsp. margarine, melted
(2 1/2 oz.) bag pecan pieces, chopped

Divide cream cheese in 20 pieces. Roll each into ball. Roll in cereal.

Press each biscuit into 3-inch circle. Small bowl, combine sugar and cinnamon. Place 1 teaspoon cinnamon mixture and 1 cream cheese ball in center of each biscuit. Pinch dough around ball to seal.

Ready-to-eat chicken makes cool work of tandem salads

If the mere thought of summertime cooking causes celery leaves to wilt in the kitchen, here's how to keep cool there. Serve refreshing main-dish salads.

Each of these creative combinations is a cinch to make because it starts with convenient canned or frozen chunks plus just a few more ingredients.

Shredded carrots provide the colorful base for Chinese-inspired Chicken in Carrot Nest Salad. Green onions and peas round out the salad with soy dressing adds a piquant touch.

For a change, try serving this versatile chicken mixture on other garden vegetables, such as thinly sliced cucumber, shredded lettuce or zucchini. For the clever version, use a vegetable peeler to make paper-thin ribbons from unpeeled cucumber.

The second winning combo, Sunny Summer Chicken Salad, uses carrots, orange dressing with crisp pea pods and yellow squash slices. It is terrific as is or stuffed into lettuce-lined pita bread for easy out-of-hand eating.

For a more robustly flavored chicken salad, try Roasted Red Pepper and Chicken Salad with an oregano-seasoned dressing. A crusty roll or loaf of bread makes a perfect companion for mopping up any extra dressing.

With any of these salads, summer melon makes a refreshing dessert whether it is a thick slice of icy watermelon or a honeydew wedge topped with sliced strawberries.

Chicken in carrot nest salad

1 cup peas
1/2 cup olive oil
2 tbsp. rice wine vinegar
1 tbsp. dried medium soy sauce
2 cups sliced green onion
Dash pepper
1 can (5 oz.) chunk white chicken, drained
1 cup shredded carrot

Simply thawing frozen peas will do. Or in 1-quart saucepan, in 1 inch boiling water cook peas 1 minute or until they turn bright green. Drain. Run cold water over peas to stop cooking. Set aside.

In small bowl, combine oil, vinegar, soy sauce, green onion and pepper. Add chicken. Toss gently to mix.

To serve, arrange carrots around edge of each salad plate. Spoon chicken mixture in center. Garnish with peas.

Makes 4 cups or 2 servings.

Note: Frozen peas that have been thawed can be used without running through boiling water.

1/2 cup white vinegar
1/2 tsp. dried dill weed, crushed
1 can (5 oz.) chunk white chicken, drained

Lettuce

Sweet and sour dipping sauce

1 (15 oz.) can pizza sauce
1 (8 1/2 oz.) can crushed pineapple, well drained

Simply thawing frozen peas will do. Or in 1-quart saucepan, in 1 inch boiling water cook peas 1 minute or until they turn bright green. Drain. Run cold

1 cup firmly packed brown sugar
2 tbsp. vinegar
1 tbsp. soy sauce

Combine pizza sauce, pineapple, brown sugar, vinegar and soy sauce in medium bowl. Heat to boiling. Reduce heat. Simmer, stirring occasionally, 5 minutes.

Serve with chicken nuggets, meatballs, shrimp or cocktail frankfurters.

Micro-wave directions: Combine all ingredients in microwave-safe dish. Cover loosely. Cook on high 1 minute. Stir. Cook additional minute or until heated to serving temperature.

Congress out to tap beer

By Frank Bass
Staff writer

WASHINGTON — As the 101st Congress grinds on into the long, hot, dog days of summer, the thoughts of some of the most influential lawmakers on Capitol Hill will turn to one thing.

"We've obviously got problems with excise taxes; they're regressive," said the executive director of the Coalition, an interest group which boasts four registered lobbyists in Washington.

And since Fort Sumter, it's all been downhill, he said.

In the latest salvo in the beer battle, a report by U.S. Surgeon General C. Everett Koop argued that excise taxes should be boosted to fund education efforts. Schreiber said he supports education but not excise taxes; hence, the mailings to combat the first excise tax hike for beer since 1950.

Schreiber said the organization which is active in 18 states, has about 325,000 "supporters," or people who have signed petitions to Congress.

There is a historical perspective to consider, he said.

"Beer, I doubtfully, was ever taxed more than by the Founding Fathers," he said. "Distilled spirits were taxed, but not beer; it was seen as the beverage of the working people. The tax wasn't imposed until the Civil War, to help the effort. It was a wartime tax, and it never was abolished."

The tax was imposed under the Civil War, to help the effort. It was a wartime tax, and it never was abolished.

But Schreiber said members of the two-year-old group don't just object to an increase in the excise tax on beer; they believe even though the federal tax is currently 9 cents per six-pack and the state taxes range from 2 cents to 36 cents per six-pack.

Not beer, as in the beverage consumed after a long, hot day. Rather, beer, as in a taxable product to reduce the swollen federal budget deficit.

But Schreiber doesn't like it, and in the coming weeks, he'll lead the charge by the Beer Drinkers of America to send 300,000 pieces of mail on Congress' doorsteps to dissuade lawmakers from belying up to the excise tax bar.

SAUSAGE THAT HAS less fat, vegetables that have none and glazes that add a flavorful touch fulfill a desire to grill summer meals with a stylishly light touch.

Grill tonight, eat in a hurry with ease, health in mind

Grilling over hot coals is a delicious, healthful and speedy way to prepare a variety of exciting foods in a casual atmosphere.

Seventy-five percent of American families own barbecue grills.

Lean cuts of meat, specialty sausages, fresh vegetables and even skewered items placed right on the grill are easy alternatives to higher calorie foods. Light marinades or glazes add the moisture needed to barbecue vegetables and provide a healthful alternative to baked or high in calories and cholesterol.

Smoked Sausage and Vegetable Grill is an example of today's new style. Vegetables of the season like eggplant, summer squash and bell peppers are cut in serving size pieces. Larger, denser vegetables, such as onion halves, are parboiled to ensure even cooking. Brush with a herb glaze and place them directly on a preheated barbecue grill. When the vegetables are browned and blistered, turn and brush again with glaze. Add the smoked sausage and grill until heated through.

This dish contains 298 calories per serving and is ready in minutes. Serve with tossed green salad and a cold beer or wine. It can be used as an after-work entree for busy people or a moveable feast, ideal for a tailgate party or picnic anywhere.

Here are more grilling tips for those with light-hearted cooking ideas:

•Marinate or baste vegetables with herbs, lemon juice and oil glazes. Go easy on the oil to save calories.

•No barbecue foods: Grilling, in most cases, is a quick process and should be watched closely to prevent food from moisture loss.

•For extra flavor, consider experimenting with different types of wood chips. Soak fruit wood chips in water and place directly on the hot coals. Gas or electric grills frequently have a special accessory to hold chips during cooking.

•Fresh herbs, garlic and citrus peel can add a special touch when placed over hot coals or lava rocks. The heat releases the oils of the herbs and foods a subtle flavor. Thyme, fennel, dill, rosemary and sage are good herb choices to consider.

Smoked sausage and vegetable grill

- 8 oz reduced-fat smoked sausage, cut into 4 pieces
- 1 medium eggplant, cut in 1 inch circles
- 2 small zucchini, halved lengthwise
- 2 small yellow summer squash, halved lengthwise
- 2 medium onions, halved, partially cooked
- 1 large red bell pepper, seeded,

cut in quarters

large yellow or green bell pepper, seeded, cut in quarters

Herb Glaze

Sprinkle eggplant with salt. Let stand 15 minutes. Rinse and pat dry. Brush one side of all vegetables with herb glaze. Place glaze-side down on medium-hot grill. Brush second side of vegetables. Place thicker vegetables over hottest area of grill. Turn when eggplant is brown and peppers are blistered, about 6 minutes.

Add sausage to grill. Heat through, turning frequently. Vegetables are done when tender.

Makes 4 servings, about 298 calories each.

Herb glaze

1/4 cup olive oil
2 tbsps. lemon juice
2 small garlic clove, minced
1 tbsp. minced parsley
1 tsp. rosemary or 1/2 tsp. dried rosemary
1/2 tsp. salt
Freshly ground pepper to taste

Combine oil, lemon juice, garlic, parsley, rosemary, salt and pepper. Freshly ground pepper to taste.

New-style scalloped potatoes

- 4 cups peeled, thinly sliced baking potatoes
- 1/2 cup sliced onions
- 1 can (10 1/2 oz.) cream of celery soup
- 1 cup (8 oz.) plain low-fat yogurt
- 1/2 cup flour
- 1/2 cup chopped fresh chives
- 2 tbsps. orange juice
- 3 lbs. beef top round steak, cut in 1 inch cubes
- 1 Pansy sprigs for garnish

Alternate layers of potatoes and onions in well-buttered 1 1/2 quart rectangular baking dish.

Combine soup, yogurt, flour, chives, salt and pepper. Pour over potatoes.

Bake 1 1/4 to 1 1/2 hours at 350° until potatoes are tender. Remove from oven. Sprinkle cheese on top. Bake 5 minutes longer until cheese is melted.

Serve immediately. Makes 6 servings. 231 calories.

Leyva's patience tested with woeful Phillies

On Baseball

By Rob Rains

Philadelphia Phillies rookie manager Nick Leyva has a theory about why everything seemingly has gone so bad for the Phillies during his first year with the club.

"They're testing me," Leyva said.

Leyva did not expect the Phillies to contend for the National League East title this season, but he was hoping they would be competitive. Instead, they are in last place and most people expect them to stay there for the rest of the year.

"It's been about as I expected, except that I didn't expect this many injuries," Leyva said. "We've used 10 different starters, and we just can't get any consistency. We haven't had the same five pitchers go out there two times in a row."

Leyva also had to deal with the unexpected retirement of future Hall-of-Famer Mike Schmidt. But Leyva said that despite all of its troubles, the team's attitude remains positive.

"Everybody has gotten disappointed and frustrated at times, but you just go out and do the best job you can," Leyva said. "I'm just basically letting them go out and play."

Pitching has been the biggest part of Philadelphia's problem. Entering last week, the staff's ERA of 4.68 was more than a half-run higher than any other team in the National League.

Philadelphia management hopes the two trades they made Sunday will improve the pitching staff. The Phillies traded Steve Bedrosian to the San Francisco Giants for two young left-handed starters, Perry Williams and Dennis Cooks, and sent center-fielder Juan Samuel to the New York Mets for reliever Roger McDowell and center fielder Len Dykstra.

The Philadelphia management, understanding what Leyva is going through, is expected to give him a two-year contract extension. The deal comes as expected as early as this week. "He called me when they were in the middle of that losing streak (11 straight games) and asked what he should do," said Cardinals manager Whitey Herzog. "I told him to meet them on the front steps at 9 a.m."

Leyva has talked with Herzog occasionally this season, but other than that he has not had much contact with the former team. Since playing the Cardinals twice the first week of the season, the two teams did not play each other until this week.

"The schedule's kind of fun for a long time like that," Leyva said. "I'm looking forward to coming in and visiting with everybody."

Philadelphia will be in St. Louis for a three-game series next Monday through Wednesday.

Another member of the Phillies is looking forward to that trip as well — second baseman Tom Herr. He will be coming back to St. Louis for the first time since being traded to the Minnesota Twins in April 1988. Herr was traded to the Phillies in the offseason and then signed with the team as a free agent.

Last Thursday (June 15) marked the 25th anniversary of perhaps the best trade in Cardinal history, getting Lou Brock from the Chicago Cubs for Ernie Broglio as part of a six-player trade.

"A lot of people asked if we knew in advance that it would be a good trade," said Bing Devine, the Cardinals' general manager at the time. "The answer is no. Very few of us are that smart."

In analyzing the trade the following day, the Chicago Daily News said, "We thank you, thank you, for our lovely Little Cardinals. Nice doing business with you. Please call again anytime." Broglio developed a sore arm and was placed on the disabled list after going 7-13 for the Cubs. The Daily News folded a few years later.

Jack Clark's nine consecutive strikeouts in two games last week set a major league record, increased his season total to a league-leading 77 in 198 at-bats. Clark is on pace for 197 strikeouts, which would break the record of 188 set by the Gumps' Bobby Bonds.

Clark, who also leads the league in walks, is hitting .217 for the San Diego Padres. When he makes contact, he's hitting .355.

"I'm playing as hard as I ever have, including my minor league career," Clark said. "If I can't get the job done, maybe it's time to retire and maybe it isn't. I'm getting to the point where I can't take it anymore."

I want to be, but maybe I should be a guy they think about trading. I don't care about me. I care about the fact I'm hurting the team."

Todd Worrell, younger brother of Ted, was selected by the Padres in the 20th round of the amateur draft but does not expect to sign, preferring to return for his senior season at Biola (Calif.) University. When pitcher Gene Huxley started Saturday for the Seattle Mariners, he became the 13th different starting pitcher for the Mariners so far this season. The Twins brought in Don Baylor to work with Greg Gagne on his hitting for a week, a move which upset Minnesota batting coach Tony Gwynn. Reporters in Atlanta that the Braves soon may dump manager Russ Nixon. Also, former major league manager John McNamara, now an advanced scout for Seattle, is in line to replace Doc Edwards in Cleveland soon. Former Atlanta Braves catcher Ozzy Virgil likely will sign with one of three clubs now that the free-agent draft has passed and a club is not required to give Atlanta compensation for signing him. If Oakland A's slugger Jose Canseco wins one of the starting spots in the outfield for the American League in the All-Star game and is healthy, Odds & Ends says Tony LaRussa said he will allow Canseco to start the game, even if he hasn't played any regular season games for the A's. Canseco has not played this season because of a broken wrist. And if Mike Schmidt wins the NL balloting at third base, maybe he will come out of retirement to start the game and show just how big a farce the All-Star voting is.

Ex-Cardinals of the Week: Doug Bair, Pittsburgh Pirates and Jamie Quirk, Oakland. Awarded for their desire, which paid off last week when both were recalled from their Triple-A teams for another stint in the majors.
